Life is more than architecture, and simultaneously the basis and essence of architecture. How can architectural drawings serve to explore people's actual uses, needs, and desires, while also give shape to individualized ways of life in today's globalized society? A discussion on the occasion of the release of ARCH+ 238 Architektur ethnografie with guest editors Momoyo Kaijima, Andreas Kalpakci, Laurent Stalder, authors Lesley McFadyen, Yoshiharu Tsukamoto, and respondent Eva Prats (tbc).
